

BRITISH KILLIFISH ASSOCIATION CONVENTION

2010

Markyate, Hertfordshire, England
10th-12th September

Why you should come

For 2010, the British Killifish Association Annual Convention is again at Markyate in Hertfordshire. Easy access for British and International visitors has been a priority; the hotel venue is 2km from the M1 motorway (J9), and within easy travel of Luton Airport.

This years Convention has the usual fish show, with all fish auctioned on the Sunday afternoon, members killifish auction on the Saturday, and three lectures relating to killifish.

Lecture 1: Fundulopanchax, Callopanchax and allied, A review - Ruud Wildekamp

Lecture 2: Congo - Jouke Van Der Zee (in 2 parts)

Part I • history and zoogeography of the Congo basin • non killifish • killifish: almost 20 years no collections made, but recently scientists start to make collections again • Lampeyes and Epiplatys (distribution of all species and not yet described new species)

Part II: Aphyosemion • species groups present in the Congo basin • what is A. decorsei? What is A. polli, What is A. schioetzi? • our A. labarrei is not the real A. labarrei • new species complex in the Inkisi tributary • elegans group: many undescribed species from Africa Museum Tervuren collection

Lecture 3: Nothobranchius - A review of the Genus - Ruud Wildekamp

We particularly welcome members who are new to the BKA, or who have never attended the Convention. It is an excellent place to talk to other killifish-keepers of all levels of experience, and share some of their knowledge. Members of the organising committee will be available at all times to assist attendees, especially those coming to the Convention for the first time.

Entering Showfish

- All showfish are donated to the BKA, with proceeds helping to fund the Convention itself. Please donate a pair if you can - they don't have to be winners; the BKA show is more about distributing fish, and creating a display of as many species as we can get together! If you would like to sell your surplus fish, there is an auction on Saturday (maximum 4 lots of any one species or population), with 25% commission of the sale price going to the BKA.
- The showfish must be entered before 10am on Saturday. Fish received after that time will be put on display but may not be judged. Just bring your fish to the show area when you arrive.
- As usual we welcome entries from overseas associations. For details of where to post email convention@bka.org.uk
- Please note that ALL fish entered in the convention show will be auctioned, with the proceeds going to the BKA.
